Transcription of five pages of handwritten notes taken from the safety deposit box of Ronald Gene Simmons and presented as evidence in the February 1989 trial for the murder of 14 family members.

How is Michael? Who did you say took care of him yesterday? How is SGS (Sylvia Gail Simmons)? Is D. (Dennis McNulty) there? What time will he get home? Is anyone else there? Are you recording this?

Please don't lie to me. You have lied to me too much already. Does D. know I was going to call you? What did you tell D. about me not wanting you to come up until after I had a chance to talk to you, back in October or November? Why did you defy me in December?

Try to understand if it sounds like I keep changing subjects, but I can't rely on memory, so I made a list, and some of the things were written down many, many months ago.

For almost three years I have waited to talk to you alone, in person, but you didn't want that, did you?

You have allowed way too much time to go by. When you were here in December, why didn't you make an attempt to talk to me? Based on the past, maybe I can't ever believe you about anything.

I wanted to talk to you in person, but you have forced me to talk to you by phone. Please listen carefully to everything I have to say.

I want to start by saying, Honey, I love you. Please don't lie to me, you have lied to me too much already. I love you and I will go to my grave loving you. You have destroyed me, and you have destroyed my trust in you.

You have been so phony with me, because of you I quit my main job. I told you that things could never be right with me and B. (his wife Becky Simmons), until they are right with you and me.

Well, you and D. have seen to it that things can never be right with you and me. You have allowed way too much time to go by.

At the beginning when you first left, I used to go to both POs (Post Office boxes) often, hoping and expecting a note or letter from you. As you know, I got nothing. You have just proved to me that your lying to me goes much deeper than I had thought.

You knew that you were going to be off today and tomorrow and you knew I wanted to talk to you, but you couldn't ever drop me a note letting me know you would be home.

You said you would never use SGS to get to me, but that was also a lie, because that isn't what you have done. Someday, she may come to hate you.

Like a fool, I had plans of dedicating my life to making things up to you (and I told you so), but you have now robbed me of that plan. It's too late for that to happen now. You have left me with no hope. You were my sunshine, now you've taken my sunshine away.

Do you think it was easy, last spring, getting in front of everybody and saying what I said, and I got no reaction from you. I sure do hope you think it was worth it, being the way you have been.

You have caused me a great deal of pain, suffering, sorrow, and loneliness. You claim D. won't let you talk to me alone, well he is going to regret that and so will you.

Once, when I called a long time ago, I told you that your lack of communicating with me is going to be your downfall. You have destroyed me, and in time, you will destroy yourself.

I know nothing about you for the past, almost three years. You are a stranger to me now, your lives have driven us apart. I once told you on the phone, a long time ago, that you determine the future, and you said, I know it.

Well, you have proven to me that things are the way you wanted them. You also don't want SGS to have anything to do with me. You said you would let SGS stay here some, but that also was a lie. SMS (Sheila Marie Simmons), in over 968 days, I have held you in my arms, only once.

In over 968 days, I have kissed you only once. I adored you SMS. I cared for you so much, and it really hurts. I miss you so very much, too. SMS, you've turned your back on me and pushed me out of your life.

Time has proven you don't care. You chose to work against me instead of with me. I told you -- united we stand, divided we fall.

You forget about all the little things I have done for you, and with you. You were my best friend. You were my confidant. You have given me the best years of my life, but you have also given me the worst years of my life.

You are the biggest disappointment in life. If you are trying to hurt me, then you should be very proud of yourself, because you have done a very good job of it.

You have destroyed me. D. thought he was so smart clapping his hands, last spring. Listen very carefully to what I am saying. I do not want D. to set foot on my property. He turned you against me. You want me out of your life. I will be out of your life. I will see you in hell.

SMS, you have already destroyed me, so remember, no matter what you say, no matter what you do, it will hurt you more than it will hurt me. I really do feel sorry for you, you had someone who really did care for you. I always tried to protect you from harm.

I wanted to help you through life. There was something else important that I wanted to say to you, but since we aren't face to face, it will have to be left unsaid.

This phone call has not been easy for me. You have anything you want to say to me? I don't blame you for everything, I take some of the blame, but you still don't have to lie to me.

You didn't have to turn your back on me. You know my two mailing addresses. SMS, you have lied to me. You have defied me, you have betrayed me, you have destroyed me.

My little princess, I know I may never see you again, and it really hurts. I will end by saying, I love you very, very deeply. Goodbye my precious sweetheart, goodbye my love, goodbye, goodbye, goodbye.
